

GENERAL INDEX.

VOL. XXIX. NEW SERIES.

- ACTS, corporation and test, necessity of their being maintained, 272, et seq.; design of the pamphlet, 272; long silence of the dissenters, 273; the author quotes with approbation Dean Swift's definition of liberty of conscience, 274; remarks on the author's reasoning, 275, et seq.; his observations on the sacrament, as a test, considered, 278, 9; the test proved to be a grievance, 279, et seq.
- Adams, Mr. President, character of, &c. 238; his coalition with Mr. Clay, 239.
- Africa, Beechey's proceedings to explore the northern coast of, 329, et seq.
- , south, Philip's researches in, &c., 385, et seq.
- Allahabad, the city of, its situation, &c. 419.
- Allegories and types, danger arising from the spirit of multiplying them, 36, 7.
- America, north, the United States of, as they are, 232, et seq.; apparent object of the author, 232; unparalleled progress of the United States, 233; canals of New York, &c., ib.; arrival at Leghorn of a ship built at Pittsburgh, ib.; curious dispute between the Captain and the Custom-house officer, ib.; Englishmen not qualified to take a fair view of the United States, ib.; they cannot be advantageously compared with England, 234; diversity of man—among the people, 234, 5; the love of money the ruling passion of the American, 235; description of the American cities, 236; architecture of the cities, and of the churches, ib.; the American character respectable but not amiable, ib.; strong prejudice prevailing in England against it, 237; the author not free from his own charge, ib.; family influence, and character of Mr. Adams, 238; coalition of Mr. Adams and Mr. Clay, 238, 9; character of Mr. Clay, 239, 40; is considered by his partizans as the first of American orators, 240; oratorical character of Mr. Clay, extracted from the North American Review, 241; character of his speeches similar to that of Fox and Pitt's, 243; subjects of his chief speeches, ib.; low state of congressional eloquence in America, 244; cause of the paucity of speakers in the British House of Commons, 245; remarks on the differences between the British houses of Parliament, and the American Congress, 246, et seq.
- Apollo, the fountain of, 343.
- Architecture, Egyptienne, Quincy de l', 132, et seq.
- Army, Spanish, Sir Arthur Wellesley's review of it by torch-light, 518.
- Athlone, heroism of some Irish soldiers, at the siege of, 16, 7.
- Austria as it is, 399, et seq.; character of the Austrian government, ib., et seq.; description of a Bohemian diet, 400, 1; appearance and character of the Emperor Francis, 402; the young Napoleon, 403; Prince Metternich, 403, 4; proof of the unpopularity of the government, 404, 5; Carlsbad, its situation, warm baths, &c., ib.
- Baptism, infant, the means of national reformation, &c., by H. Budd, 110, et seq.
- Barrow on the responsibility of man for his belief, &c., 361, et seq.; on the dignity put upon faith, 364; faith implies a good use of reason, 364, 5; on the influence of the will upon our judgement of things, 365, et seq.
- Barn, the, and the Steeple, 474, et seq.
- Barton's lecture on the geography of plants, 564, et seq.
- Beechey's proceedings of the expedition to explore the northern coast of Africa, &c., 329, et seq.; friendly disposition of the Bashaw of Tripoli, 331; character of Shekh Mahommed, ib.; Capt. Smith's account of Lebida, the ancient Leptis, 331, 2; granite columns, cornices, &c., sent by him to the British Museum, 332; his visit to the ruins of Ghirza, ib.; curious account of a Marabûr doctor, 333, 4; treacherous state of the earth at the marshes near Mesurata, 334, 5; Shekh Mahommed's duplicity

INDEX.

- justly rewarded, 335, 6; account of the Arabs of Zaffran, 337, 8; state of the country about the Syrtis and the Cyrenaica, 338; Bengazi, ib.; the supposed gardens of the Hesperides, 339; extract from De Sacy's Chrestomathie Arabe, 340; Tauchira, or Tocra, 340, 1; ruins of Ptolemeta, 341; romantic scenery of the road to Cyrene, ib.; description of Cyrene, 341, 2; tombs, ib.; the fountain of Apollo, 343.
- Benares, description of the city of, 412, 3.
- Bengal, an evening in; lines by Bishop Heber, 505, 6.
- Belcher's interesting narratives from the sacred volume illustrated and improved, 270, et seq.; the foundling, 270, 1; the awful apostate, 271, 2.
- Bheels, description of them, by Sir John Malcolm, 310, et seq.; Bishop Heber's account of them, 312, 3; their religion and religious ceremonies, &c., 316; are supposed, by Major Wilford, to be the remains of the Palli, 317.
- Bibliotheca Parriana, 162, et seq.; Dr. Parr's earnest wish that his library should remain entire, 162; the present catalogue written at the suggestion of Dr. Maltby, 162, 3; its contents, 163; Dr. Parr's annotations to several works under the class of theology, ib., et seq.; observations on Dr. Parr's annotations to Sancroft's Fur Prædestinatus, as applied to the case of Kendal of Wellingborough, 167, et seq.; his character of Archdeacon Paley, 169; excellence of the catalogue raisonnée of Howel and Stewart, 170.
- Bickersteth's Christian hearer, 471, et seq.; observations on some remarks of the late Mr. Hey, 472.
- discourse on justification by faith, 175, et seq.; Hooker's exposition of the fault of the Church of Rome, 175; justification is opposed to condemnation, ib.; the author's explanation of the term, ib.; another sense in which the term is used by the sacred writers, 176; Our Lord often ascribes to faith, what directly belongs to himself, ib.; neither faith nor works can have any satisfactory efficiency, 177; justification not a conditional act on the part of God, ib.; justification not synonymous with forgiveness, ib.; distinction between justification and forgiveness, 178; observations on the two heresies, justification by works, and justification by the sacraments, ib.
- Biddulph, on divine influence, 481, et seq.
- Bijou, the, design and execution of its embellishments considered, 67, 8; the principal contributors to the work, 69; stanzas to the child and flowers, 69, 70.
- Binney's ultimate design of the Christian ministry, &c. 82, et seq.; occasion of the discourse, 90; on the application of the word 'perfect' by the ancients, ib.; the scriptural use of the term considered, 90, 1; its application to the Christian, 91; does not signify complete freedom from defect, 92; the other terms of the text examined, ib.; the aim of Christianity the perfection of man, 93, 4; a revelation necessary to secure this object, 94.
- Blasphemy against the Holy Spirit, 481, et seq.
- Blood, reasons for the prohibition of eating it, 357; permanency of the prohibition, ib.
- Bogs, Irish, state and cause of them, 28, 9.
- Book, a fireside, 145, et seq.; the story teller differs essentially from the poet, 145, et seq.; effect of this difference upon the reader, 147, 8; evil consequence of a habit of light reading, 148; the author's reason for entreating his reader to buy his book, 150; the mansion of Old Court described, ib., et seq.; Cyril Egerton, a tale, 152, et seq.
- Bridges's exposition of the 119th Psalm, 250, et seq.; specimen of the exposition, 250, 1.
- Brock's affectionate address to members of the church of England, 110, et seq.; exhortations to his parishioners, in case they are solicited to separate from the Church, 124, et seq.; approximation of the language of the Church of England and of the Church of Rome on the doctrine of absolution, 126, 7; extract from a Roman Catholic sermon, 127, 8; remarks on the charge of schism, 128.
- Budd's infant baptism the means of national reformation, &c., 110, et seq.; uniformity will arise without discussion, in the establishment of unity, 129, et seq.
- Burder's, John, lectures on religion, 551, et seq.; merit and design of the work, 552, 3; accountability to God and to man perfectly distinct things, 554; nature and marks of true religion, 555, 6; on the disposition of mind, necessary for success, in the inquiry after truth, 557, 8; on the causes of persecution, 559; the author's reasoning not sufficiently distinct, 560; concluding remarks, 561, 2.
- Calcutta, description of, 293, et seq.
- Callaway's oriental observations and occasional criticism, 265, et seq.; illustrations, 265, 6.

INDEX.

- Canals, account of some, in the United States*, 233.
- Canning, the Right Hon. G., memoirs of the life of, 259 et seq.; the principles, talents, and conduct of Mr. Canning, 260, 1; his fierce opposition to the Grenville administration, 262.
- Carlsbad, its situation, warm baths, &c.* 404, 5.
- Child, a first-born, stanzas to*, 73, 4.
- Child and flowers, stanzas to the*, 69, 70.
- Children, Robertson's observations on the mortality and physical management of, 443, et seq.
- Chivalry and romance, stories of, 145, et seq.
- Christ, March's early life of, 74, et seq.
- Christianity, Taylor's balance of, 361, et seq.
- Church and dissenters, Merewether's case between, impartially considered, 110, et seq.
- Church, Catholic, Sibthorp's character and tokens of the, 281, et seq.
- Church of England, Brock's affectionate address to the members of the, 110, et seq.
- Churches in the United States, architecture of them, 236.
- Cities, American, description of them, 236; their architecture, ib.
- Clay, Mr., oratorical character of, from the North American Review*, 241; his speeches, &c. ib. et seq.
- Climate, island, and continental, difference between them*, 567.
- Coins and medals, Walsh's brief notice of some ancient, as illustrating the progress of Christianity, 37, et seq.
- Columbus, Christopher, Irving's history of the life and writings of, 224, et seq.
- Concord, the temple of, at Girgenti, ruins of*, 380, 1.
- Controversy, the Romish, 193, et seq.; a controversial spirit not conducive to the cultivation of personal piety, 194; protestantism can be ably defended by those only who have studied the real opinions of the papists, ib.; protestantism has become deteriorated in certain quarters in this country, 195; Mr. Faber's remarks on the infallibility of the Latin church considered, 196; Mr. Maguire's assertion that the Pope's infallibility is not a doctrine of any catholic, not correct, 197; the seat of Romish infallibility, shewn by Mr. Pope not to be decided, ib.; the Bishop of Aire, and Mr. Faber's remarks on the right of private judgement, 198, 9; observations on their opinions, 199, et seq.; Mr. Faber and Mr. Maguire on the danger and illegitimacy of the right of private judgement, 201, et seq.; Mr. Pope's reply to Mr. Maguire, 204, 5; remarks on the meaning of the word 'authority', 206, 7; the authority of the church as an interpreter of scripture, is an historical testimony, 207; on the value of the opinions of the early fathers, ib.; important admission of Mr. Faber, on the right of private judgement, 208; Chillingworth on the sufficiency of the scriptures as a rule of faith, 209; the evidence of the truth weakened by the injudicious and erroneous concessions of churchmen, ib.; the sufficiency and exclusive authority of the Holy Scriptures, as a standard of faith, the fundamental principle of the reformation, 211; source of the error of the Socinian, 212; the real organ of the authority of the Church of England man, and of the Romanist, essentially different, 213, 14.
- Corfu, inscription on a temple still standing in the island of, and supposed to have been erected by Jovian*, 43.
- Corporation and test acts, necessity of their being maintained, 272, et seq.
- Criticism, and interpretation, biblical, elements of, 30, et seq.; the English universities have lately afforded but few contributions of any value to biblical literature, 31; the Christian ministry should be well able to instruct in Christian doctrine, ib.; fanciful exhibitions of the scriptures very frequent, 32; causes that have operated to retard the advancement of sacred philology in England, ib.; this manual prepared as a text-book by Professor Stuart, 33; its contents, ib.; subjects noticed by the English editor, ib.; on the various readings of the New Testament, ib.; on the moral qualifications of an interpreter of scripture, 34; his literary qualifications, ib.; books recommended for his perusal, ib.; conclusions of the author, respecting the abuse of words, &c. 34, 5; error of assigning many meanings to a word at the same time and place, 35; error of affirming that words mean all that they can mean, ib.; the sense of words, properly considered, is not allegorical, 35, 6; properly speaking, there is no typical sense of words, 36; danger resulting from the spirit of multiplying allegories and types, 36, 7.
- Cuba, southern coast of, Irving's description of the former and the present appearance of, 231.
- Cuvier, Baron, his opinion that our globe

INDEX.

- has, recently, suffered a great revolution, 62.
- Cuyler, his intolerable oppression of the Hottentots, 532.
- Cyrene, description of it, 341, 2.
- Dacca, its present state, &c. 301, et seq.; the Christian burial-ground, 302, 3.
- Daubeny's description of active and extinct volcanos, &c. 51, et seq.
- tabular view of volcanic phenomena, &c. 51, et seq.
- Davis's hints designed to promote a profitable attendance on an evangelical ministry, 471, et seq.; duty of steadily hearing the truth, 472, 3.
- Deity, the omnipresence of the, R. Montgomery's poem on, 452, et seq.
- Delhi, the city of, 422; Patan palace, 423; Humâoon's tomb, ib.
- Discourses in vindication of the Christian faith, and on the responsibility of man for his belief, by Isaac Barrow, D. D. 361, et seq.
- Discussion between the Rev. Mr. Pope and the Rev. Mr. Maguire, authenticated report of the, 193, et seq.
- Districts, maritime, not universally milder than the interior, 567.
- Druids, the Celtic, by G. Higgins, 132, et seq.
- Drummond's doctrine of the Trinity founded neither on scripture nor on reason, &c. 193. 210. 212.
- Edinburgh Bible society, view of the character, position, and prospects of the, 180, et seq.; extracts, ib.
- Elm, doubt respecting its being indigenous to our island, 569.
- Ephemerides, Pringle's, 343, et seq.
- Epicureans, ethics of the sect of the, 549, et seq.
- Euripides, Major's Hecuba of, 248, et seq.
- Evanson's translation of Dr. Bretschneider's apology for the theology of Germany, 187, et seq.; attack upon an Eclectic reviewer, 188; a better order of things arising in Germany, 189.
- Exhibitions, fanciful, of the scriptures, very frequent, 32.
- Faber's difficulties of Romanism, 193, et seq.; see Controversy, the Romish.
- Fables, one hundred, original and selected, by J. Northcote, 562, et seq.; merits of the wood engravings, 563.
- Fairies, midsummer, Hood's plea of the, &c. 189, et seq.
- Fates, description of the, 172, 3; representations of, 173.
- Fire-side book, 145, et seq.
- Florence, poetical illustration of Turner's view of; from the Keepsake, 71, 2.
- Foy's, General, histoire de la guerre de la Péninsule, 506, et seq.
- France, central, Scrope's memoir on the geology of, 51, et seq.
- Francis, the Emperor, of Austria, his appearance, character, &c. 402.
- Franklin's present state of Hayti, 97, et seq.; the author a disappointed projector of a mining company, ib.; population of Hayti at different periods since the revolution, 98; comparison of its population with some of the United States, 99; history of its commerce and produce, ib. et seq.; division and boundaries of the French possessions, 100; quantity of land under cultivation, ib.; their staples, &c. 100, 1; on the causes of the revolution, ib.; state of morals, 102; three periods of the revolutionary history of St. Domingo, 103; conduct of Toussaint l'Ouverture during the short interval of repose, 103, 4.; his character, 104; forcible deportation of Toussaint and his family, 105; the war of independence, ib.; affairs of the island, after its independence, 106, 7; its present state, 108; its morals and progress in civilization, &c. 109, 10.
- Fry's, Elizabeth, report respecting Ireland, &c.; see Ireland.
- Germany, theology of; see Evanson's translation, &c.
- Gillfillan's practical views of the dignity, grace, and operation of the Holy Spirit, 481, et seq.
- Gilbert's, Mrs., hymns for infant schools, 284, et seq.
- original anniversary hymns, &c., 284, et seq.; the hymns are designed for three purposes, 285; the last trumpet, ib.; the hill of God, 284, 5.
- Gilpin, his character as a professor of the picturesque, 263.
- Girgenti, description of the scenery around it, 380.
- Globe and cross, on coins, introduced by Theodosius the Great, 43.
- Good, the late John Mason, Gregory's memoirs of the life, writings, &c. of, 537, et seq.
- Gregory's memoirs of the life, writings, &c. of the late John Mason Good, 537, et seq.; literary attainments of Mr. Good, 538; character of his dissertation and notes on the psalms, 539; he gradually renounces his Socinian sentiments, 540, 1; his remarks on walking with God,

INDEX.

- 541, 2; specimen of his poetical talent, 542, 3; his solemn confession and testimony to the truth, 543, 4.
- Grinfield's nature and extent of the Christian dispensation, with reference to the salvability of the heathen, 361, et seq.
- Gurney's report to the Marquess Wellesley respecting Ireland; see Ireland.
- Guerrillas, their efficiency as a military force considered, by the Marquess of Londonderry*, 509.
- Hahn's public declaration addressed to the Lutheran churches in Saxony, Prussia, &c., 523, et seq.; subjects of the work, 523; various opinions of the Rationalists, respecting Jesus and his disciples, 524; letter of the Rev. B. Kürtz, on the present state of religion in Germany, 526.
- Hayti, Franklin's present state of, 97, et seq.
- Health, on the value of*, 76, 7.
- Hearer, the Christian, by the Rev. E. Bickersteth, 471, et seq.
- Heathen, Grinfield on the salvability of, 361, et seq.
- Heber's, Bishop, narrative of a journey through the upper provinces of India, &c., 289, et seq.; scarcity of English travels in India, 290; Major Rennell's map of Hindoostan, 291; travels of Dr. Buchanan and Lord Valentia, 292; description of Calcutta, 293, 4; mean appearance of the shops, bazars, &c., 294, 5; country round Calcutta, 295; temperature of the weather at different periods, ib.; the Bishop's troublesome voyage to Dacca, 296, 7; he lands at the ruined Hindoo city of Sibnibashi, 297; his interview with the Rajah, 299; Dacca, its decayed state, trade, population, &c., 301; appearance of the city, 302; the Christian burial ground, 302, 3; voyage up the river continued, 303; ruins of Gour, ib.; the Bishop's warm description of the Bengalee country and people, 304; an evening in Bengal, 305, 6; account of the Puharrees, 307, et seq.; excellent policy of Mr. Cleveland, ib.; Sir John Malcolm's description of the Bheels, 310, et seq.; Bishop Heber's account of the Bheels of Rajpootana, 312, 13; further notice of these people, 314, 15; their religious ceremonies, 315, 16; religion, 316; are supposed, by Major Wilford, to be the remains of the Palli, 317; description of two budge-rows on the Ganges, 407; proportion of the Mussulman population, 408; Suttees frequent in the Ghazee-poor district, ib.; cause of the increased frequency of Sut-
- teeism in Bengal, 409; the city of Benares, 412, 13; description of a private dwelling, 413, 14; and of a Jain temple, 414, 15; the Mahratta chieftain Trim-bukjee, 416, 17; visit to the holiest place in India, 418; Allahabad, its situation, &c., 419; Lucknow, ib. the province of Kumaon, 421, 2; Nundidevi asserted by the natives to discharge smoke, 422; the city of Delhi, ib.; the Patan palace, 423; Humaïoon's tomb, ib., et seq.; the Bishop presented to the emperor Akbar, 424; account of him, ib.; the city of Jyepoor, 424, 5; remarks on the Bishop's notice of Mr. Chamberlain, 426.
- Henderson's republication of Stuart's translation of elements of biblical criticism and interpretation, 30, et seq.
- Hesperides, site of the supposed gardens of, 339.
- Higgins's Celtic Druids, 132, et seq.; the author hates priests most sweepingly, 133; a few words in apology for Calvin, 134; division of the work, 134, 5; excellent execution of some of the plates, 135; the author's argument, ib.; he eulogizes M. Bailly, 136; censures Sir William Jones, 137; and proceeds to give the real hypothesis of Bailly, ib.; account of M. Bailly's work, 138; his three principal facts, as conclusions from his reasoning, ib.; letter to Voltaire, 139; his remarks on the gardens of the Hesperides, &c., ib.; Mr. Higgins convicted of blunders, &c., ib.; Pelloutier and Pinkerton on the origin of the Celts, 140; observations on architectonic history, ib.; memorial stones of the Old Testament, 141; Druidical stones, &c., ib.; Persian monuments, 142; temple of Abury, ib.; Stonehenge, ib.; Mr. Cunningham's conjecture respecting the interior circles of smaller stones, 143.
- History, scripture, from the creation to the birth of Christ, 267, et seq.
- Hood's plea of the Midsummer Fairies, &c., 189, et seq.; sonnet, 189; ode to melancholy, 190.
- Hottentots, cruel aggressions on the, by the colonists and the Cape government, 394, 5.
- Hymns, original anniversary, by Mrs. Gilbert, 284, et seq.
- Iconoclasts, in the reign of Leo the Second; account of them, 44.
- India, Bishop Heber's narrative of a journey through the upper provinces of, 289, et seq.
- Indigestion, Uwins's treatise on diseases connected with, 64, et seq.

I N D E X.

- Influence, divine, sermons on; see Orme's discourses, &c.
- Irving's history of the life and writings of Christopher Columbus, 224, et seq.; the earliest trace of Columbus, 226; character of Queen Isabella, 227, 8; Columbus's vision, 229, 30; discoveries of his four voyages, 230; contrast between the former and the present appearance of the south coast of Cuba, 231.
- letter to the king, &c., 570, et seq.; the author shews his ignorance of the history of his country, 570; remarks on the absurdities contained in his statements, 571, 2; he threatens the king with the judgements of Heaven, if he sanctions the repeal of the penal laws, &c., 573; seems to forget that he is a dissenter, 574; he appeals somewhat extravagantly to the priesthood, ib.
- Ireland, O'Driscoll's history of, 1, et seq.; cruel conduct of the Spaniards on the conquest of Peru, 1, 2; the conduct of the Anglo-Saxon conquerors of the Irish stated by the Author to have been equally atrocious, 2, 3; inquiry as to the Author's veracity as a faithful historian, 4, et seq.; testimony of Dr. Curry, 5; inquiry respecting the Irish massacre, 6, 7; confederacy formed by the Irish in self-defence, ib.; landing and cruelties of the Scotch in the Island of Magee, ib.; revenge of the Irish, ib.; horrible cruelties of the English in retaliation, ib.; excessive exaggeration of the number of English slain, 7; admirable conduct of the Irish ecclesiastics in 1170, ib.; their behaviour during the Irish massacre, 8; cruel treatment of them in England, 9; unjust condemnation and death of the primate Oliver Plunket, ib.; different treatment of Bishop Bedel, by the Irish papists, 10; period of Irish history treated of by the present historian, 11; account of the Enniskillen horse, 11, 12; character of Redmond O'Hanlan, 12, 13; Irish opinion of King James, 13; gallant action of Sarsfield, ib.; character of St. Ruth, 15, 16; heroism of some Irish at the siege of Athlone, 16, 17; the sacrament given as a military test, 17; climate and fertility of Ireland, 18, 19; population and poverty of its inhabitants, 20; prevalence of disease in the country, 20, 1; first cause of it the contempt of the privileged classes for the peasantry, 21, et seq.; second cause, the number of absentees, 23, 4; last cause, the excessive population, 24, 5; remarks on the proposed remedies, emancipation and emigration, ib., et seq.; cause and state of the bogs of Ireland, 28, et seq.; obstacle of the progress of the reformation in Ireland, 30.
- Ireland, Gurney and Elizabeth Fry's report of, addressed to the Marquess Wellesley, 84, et seq.; subjects of the report, 84; almost every thing in Ireland is neglected, ib.; the state of the poor in Ulster different from that in the other provinces, 84, 5; how the physical condition of the poor is to be improved, &c., 85; it must be done by the exertions of individuals, 85; allotment of small portions of land to the poor at a low rent, a desirable experiment, ib.; evils of the present mode of letting land, &c., 86; the dispeopling of estates is on the increase, 87; emigration extensively prevalent in Ireland, ib.; on the removal of civil disabilities, 88, 9.
- Isabella, Queen, Washington Irving's character of, 227, 8.
- Islands, the Sandwich, Stewart's journal of a residence in, &c., 462, et seq.
- Jaarsveld, Van, sanguinary atrocities committed by him on the Bushmen, 392.
- Jain temple, description of a, 414, 15.
- Justification by faith, Bickersteth's discourse on, 175, et seq.
- Jyepoor, the city of, 424, 5.
- Keepsake, the, for 1828, 66, et seq.; remarks on the embellishments of the work, 66, 7; the contributors anonymous, 70, 1; the reasons for it considered, 71; poetical illustration of Turner's view of Florence, 71, 2; translation of an ode from the German of Körner, 72, 3; stanzas to a first-born child, 73, 4.
- King, Irving's letter to the, on the repeal of the test and corporation laws, 570, et seq.
- Kumaoon, the province of, 421, 2.
- Kürtz, the Rev. B., letter of, on the present state of religion in Germany, 525, 6.
- Lawyer, the cabinet, 174, et seq.; the work highly creditable to the editor, 174.
- Lebida, the ancient Leptis, its ruins, &c., 331, 2; granite columns, &c. sent by Capt. Smith to England, 332.
- Lectures on the history of the Christian church and on Nonconformity, by Israel Worsley, 251, et seq.
- Lipari islands, 382; see Sicily, &c.
- Londonderry's, the Marquess of, narrative of the Peninsular war, 506, et seq.; see war, &c.
- London in the olden time, 145, et seq.; design of the author, 154, 5; tale of Finsbury Fields, 155, 6; Norman de Staple-

INDEX.

- ford*, 156, et seq.; song of the olden time, 160, 1.
- Lucknow, city of, 419.
- Macaluba, the mud volcano of, ib.
- Maimonides, the More Nevochim of, see Townley's reasons, &c.
- Major's Hecuba of Euripides, 248, et seq.
- Manual, classical, 170, et seq.; character and design of the work, 171; the author's account of the Muses, 171, 2; meanings and derivations of their names, ib.; description of the Fates, 172, 3; representations of, 173, 4.
- March's early life of Christ, 74, et seq.; the example of Christ, as the standard of Christian morality, too much neglected, 74; introductory remarks of the author, 75; subjects of the different chapters, ib.; on the bodily endowments of Christ, 75, 6; on the advantages of an humble condition of life in connexion with godliness, 76; on the value of health, 76, 7; evils of the prevailing mode of female education, 77, 8; on the mental faculties of Christ, as having been capable of enlargement, 78, 9; on the manhood of Christ, 79, 80; on the conduct of our Lord towards Joseph and his mother, 80, 1; he was always mindful of his dignity and his mission, 81, 2; he became subject to parental authority, 82; he strongly inculcated duty to parents, 82, 3; the neglect of parents in later life very prevalent, 83.
- Mayow's sermons and miscellaneous pieces, 215, et seq.; his visit to a family in extreme wretchedness, 220; his peculiar notion of the divine subsistence, 221; and of the doctrine of satisfaction, ib.; the death-bed of old Samuel Grey, 222, et seq.; death of the author, 224.
- Melancholy, ode to, 190.
- Memoirs of the life of the Right Hon. George Canning, 259, et seq.
- Mendham's account of the indexes, both prohibitory and expurgatory, of the church of Rome, 193.
- Merewether's case between the church and the dissenters impartially considered, 110, et seq.; consequences that would follow the influx of dissenters into the establishment, 111; the author's professed object is the peace of the church, 112; evils of parties, 112, 3; eight evils of dissent, 114; dissent is anarchical, ib.; anarchy of presbyterianism, as exhibited in the Caledonian Chapel, 115; St. Giles's Church asserted to be more regular, ib.; dissent anti-social, 116, et seq.; dissenters stated to be a collection of minorities, 117; the church of England in Ireland and Scotland, is a collection of minorities, ib.; dissent is unpeaceable, 118; it is unpatriotic, ib.; the author's notions of patriotism intolerant, 119; dissent is uneconomical, 120; is unseemly, ib.; and unscriptural, 120, 1; the author deprecates any alteration in the liturgy and articles, 121, 2.
- Metternich, Prince, his character, policy, &c., 403, 4.
- Ministry, an evangelical, Davis's hints designed to promote a profitable attendance on, 471, et seq.
- the Christian, Binney's ultimate design of, &c., 82, et seq.
- Missionaries, American, at the Sandwich islands, examination of charges against them, 462, et seq.
- Mitchell's Newtonian system of philosophy, 179, et seq.; improvements of the work, 180.
- Monuments, Persian, &c., 142.
- Montgomery's, Robert, Omnipresence of the Deity, 452, et seq.; the argument, 454, 5; extract, 456; the Sabbath, 457, 8; morning, 459, 60; noon, 460, 1; night, 461, 2.
- Moore, Sir John, remarks on his retreat, by Col. Napier and the Marquess of Londonderry, 516, et seq.
- Morell's elements of the history of philosophy and science, 545, et seq.; division of the whole series of ages to be treated of, 546, 7; causes of the obscurity of Egyptian literary history, 547; sources of the metaphysical doctrines of Plato, 548; ethics of the Epicurean sect, 549, et seq.
- Morning, lines on, 459.
- Muses, account of them, 171, 2; meaning and derivations of their names, ib.
- Napier's history of the war in the Peninsula, and in the south of France, 506, et seq.; see War, &c.
- Napoleon the young, description of his person, &c., 403.
- Narratives, interesting, from the sacred volume, illustrated, &c. by J. Belcher, 270, et seq.
- Newstead's divinity and offices of the Holy Spirit, &c. 481, et seq.
- New Testament, Thomson's scripture history of, 267, et seq.
- Night, lines on, 461, 2.
- Noon, 460, 1.
- Northcote's One hundred Fables, original and selected, 562, et seq.
- Nundidevi, the highest summit in the world, 422; smoke asserted by the natives to issue from the lower peak, ib.

I N D E X.

- Observations, oriental, &c. by J. Callaway, 265, et seq.
- Ode by Körner, translation of, from the German, 72, 3.
- O'Driscoll's history of Ireland, 1, et seq.
- Olive, climate of the, 586.
- Origin of Chinese, Egyptian, and Greek architecture, 143.
- Orme's discourses on the blasphemy against the Holy Spirit, &c., 481, et seq.; on the limitation of the forgiveness proffered by the gospel, 482; the design of our Lord asserted to be to warn, not to accuse the Pharisees, 483; remarks upon the author's statements, ib. et seq.; further observations on the blasphemy against the Holy Spirit, ib.; on 'the sin unto death,' 488, 9; the necessity of the Spirit's influence in promoting the success of the gospel, 490, et seq.; on the modus operandi of the Spirit's influence, 492; opposite opinions of divines as to the immediate subject of Divine operation, ib.; opinion of the author, 493; objections to it, ib.; two governing principles in the mind of man, 494; case of a newly born infant, 494, 5; nature of the change superinduced upon the character, 495, 6; both the word and the Spirit necessary to conversion, 496; on incorrect views of the Divine sovereignty, as affecting attempts made for the salvation of others, 498; the proclamation of the gospel not the only means of converting the world, 498, 9; necessity and efficacy of prayer, 500; on the ministry of the gospel being committed to men of an inferior order, ib.; advantages to be expected from the instituting of colleges, 501; great prevalence of an uncharitable spirit in the present day, 502, 3; Howe on a religious fear of misapplying prophecies, 503, 4; on the fulness of the Divine grace, 505, 6.
- Parents, the neglect of, in later life, prevalent, 83.
- Payne's elements of mental and moral science, 318, et seq.; Dr. Chalmers on the authorship of Scotland, 319; origin of the present work, 320; remarks on the late Dr. Brown's works, 320, 1; the faculties of the mind not to be distinguished from the mind itself, 322; on the classification of the mental phenomena, 322, 3; the power of suggestion, 324, 5; the author's representation of conscience considered, 326; his exposure of the fallacy of Dr. Brown's ethical reasonings, 327; the homage due to Divine revelation, 328.
- Philosophy and science, Morell's elements of the history, 545, et seq.
- Pitt, the Right Hon. William, earl of Chatham, Thackeray's history of, 427, et seq.
- Pittsburgh, ship built at, arrives at Leghorn, 233; curious altercation between the captain and the custom-house officer, ib.
- Peggs's pilgrim tax in India, 269; idolatry in India less feared than popery in Ireland, 269; the idol missionaries of India supported by British authorities, ib.
- Perfect, application of the term by the ancients, 90; its scriptural use, 90, 1; see Binney, &c.
- Philip's researches in South Africa, &c., 385, et seq.; the author's account of his work, 386, 7; oppressed state of the South Africans under the Dutch government, ib.; the author's statement of their present grievances, 387, et seq.; topics treated of in this work, 389; detail of the aggressions committed upon the natives by the Dutch, 390, et seq.; proceedings of the three commandoes under the Dutch government, 391, 2; atrocities committed by Van Jaarsveld, 392; continuance of this destructive system, under the direct sanction of British governors, 393; illustrative extract, 393, 4; account of the continued cruel aggressions of the colonists and the Cape government, 394, 5; illness and death of Mr. Williams, a missionary in Cafferland, 397, 8; on the obstructions opposed to the progress of the Christian missions in South Africa, 527; Dr. Vanderkemp's letter to Governor Janssens on the wrongs of the colonists, 528; meliorated situation of the natives during the government of Lord Macartney and General Dundas, ib.; the old system re-established on the second capture of the colony, ib.; letter of Vanderkemp to the London Missionary Society, 529; to Major Cuyler, two years after, ib.; state of the colony under Lord Caledon, 530; ineffectual exertions of Vanderkemp, ib.; his death, ib.; Mr. Campbell deputed to visit the South African missionary stations, 531; second visit of Mr. Campbell with Dr. Philip, ib.; oppressive conduct of Cuyler, 532; appeal in favour of the Hottentots, 533, 4; their improved state since the beginning of the mission, 535, 6.
- Philology, sacred, causes that have operated to retard its advancement in England, 32.
- Plants, Barton's lecture on the geography of, 564, et seq.; merits of the work, 565; limitation of particular plants to

INDEX.

- certain latitudes, 565, 6; plants of the arctic regions, 566; the climate of maritime districts not universally milder than the interior, 567; difference between island climate and continental climate, ib.; climate of the vine and of the olive, 586; the oak, beech, and elm stated to be indigenous to our island, ib.; doubt respecting the elm, 569; sylvan scenery productive of a gloomy state of mind, 569; geography of some other trees, ib.
- Portrait of our Lord, inquiry respecting the existence of one, 47, et seq.; see Coins, &c.
- Precepts, Maimonides's fourteen classes of, 358, et seq.
- Present, birthday, by Mrs. Sherwood, 82.
- Pringle's Ephemerides, 343, et seq.; poetical description of African scenery, 345, et seq.; African evening scenery, 348, et seq.; stanzas on visiting a missionary settlement, 351.
- Puharrees, account of them, 307, et seq.
- Quincy de l'architecture Egyptienne, 132, et seq.; the author's theory, 143; origin of Chinese, Egyptian, and Greek architecture, ib.; lightness and heaviness the characters of Chinese and Egyptian buildings, 144.
- Regions, arctic, plants of the, 566.
- Religion, John Burder's lectures on, 551, et seq.
- Report, authenticated, of the discussion between the Rev. R. Pope and the Rev. T. Maguire, 193, et seq.; see Controversy, the Romish.
- Rhodes's Yorkshire scenery, 262, et seq.; character of Gilpin, as a professor of the picturesque, 263; description of the country round Rotheram, and its church, 264.
- Roberton's observations on the mortality and physical management of children, 443, et seq.; the author's conclusions from an examination of the London bills of mortality for thirty years, 444, 5; Dr. Price on the annual average of births at various places, 445; extracts from the registers of the church of Grappenhall in Cheshire, ib. et seq.; considerations suggested by the statements of a register kept at Rusholme cemetery, 447; blunders of Dr. Watt of Glasgow, ib.; on the management of infants at the earliest stage, 449; treatment after being weaned, 451, 2.
- Romanism, Faber's difficulties of, 193, et seq.
- Rotheram, description of its church, and the country surrounding it, 264.
- Sabbath, lines on the, 457, 8.
- Sacrament, the, taken as a military test, in Ireland, 17.
- Sarsefield, gallant action of, in Ireland, 14, 15.
- Scenery, African, poetical descriptions of, 345, et seq.
- Rhodes's Yorkshire, 262, et seq.
- Scenes, Warton's death-bed, &c. 215, et seq.
- Schools, infant, Mrs. Gilbert's hymns for, 284, et seq.
- Science, mental and moral, Payne's elements of, 318, et seq.
- Serape's considerations on volcanoes, probable causes of, &c., 51, et seq.
- memoir on the geology of central France, 51, et seq.
- Sermons and miscellaneous pieces, by the Rev. R. Mayow, 215, et seq.
- by Dr. Wardlaw, on man's accountableness for his belief, and on the responsibility of the heathen, 361, et seq.
- on the nature and offices of the Holy Ghost, by J. Edmondson, and R. Treffry, 481, et seq.
- Sherwood's, Mrs., birthday present, 89.
- Sibnibashi, a ruined Hindoo city, bishop Heber's account of it, 297, et seq.
- Sibthorp's character and tokens of the Catholic church, 281, et seq.; the unity of faith exists among the Protestants, 282; it is not in the Roman church, 282, 3; on the unity of communion, 283, 4.
- Sicily, and the Lipari islands, travels through, 376, et seq.; the author's opinion of the origin of the Gothic architecture, 377; he attempts to support his opinion, 378; he visits Segesta, Selinuntum, and the sulphur mines of Catto-lica, 379; description of the fine scenery around Girgenti, 380; the temple of Juno Lucina, ib.; present state of the ruins of the temple of Concord, 380, 1; temples of Hercules, and of Olympian Jove, ib.; the mud volcano of Macaluba, ib.; the Lipari islands, 382; observations on the northern coast of Sicily, 382.
- Society, Edinburgh bible, view of its character, &c., 180, et seq.
- Spaniard, Col. Napier's portrait of the, 519.
- Stanzas, on visiting a missionary settlement, 351.
- States, United, of North America, as they are, 232, et seq.
- Steeple, the, and the Barn, 474, et seq.
- Stewart's journal of a residence in the

INDEX.

- Sandwich islands, &c., 462, et seq.; Mr. Ellis's description of the particular character of the present work, 462, 3; the three principal grounds of the opposition to the labours of the missionaries in the Sandwich islands, 463, 4; state of affairs in the islands, in 1823, a proof of the first ground of opposition, 464, 5; remarkable change in the conduct of the Queen dowager, 465; entreats her son the King to attend to the missionaries, 465, 6; her dying advice to him, 466; base conduct of some foreigners in corrupting the King, 466; proofs of the second ground of hostility, 467, 8; attempt upon the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Richards, 468; Boki's account of his conversation with our King, 469; Lord Byron's opinion of the letter professed to have been written by Boki, 470; remarks of the American reviewer on this subject, 470, 1.
- Stonehenge, 142; Mr. Cunningham's conjecture respecting the interior circles of smaller stones, 143.
- Stones, memorial, of the Old Testament, 141.
- Stromboli, Scrope's description of the operations of, 63.
- Stuart's translation of elements of Biblical criticism and interpretation, 30, et seq.; see Criticism, &c.
- Suttees, cause of the increased frequency of, in Bengal, 409.
- the frequency of, in the Ghazepoor district, 408.
- Tax, pilgrim, in India, by J. Peggs, 269.
- Taylor's balance of Christianity, &c., 361, et seq.; the assertion that man cannot believe as he pleases, 368, 9; comparison between the case of the infidel and that of the profligate, 369, 70; on the danger of doubting, 371.
- Telescope, Tom, see Mitchell's Newtonian Philosophy.
- Thackeray's history of the Right Hon. William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, 427, et seq.; Frederick the Great and Oxeustern the representatives of two distinct classes of public men, 429, et seq.; political character of Lord Chatham, 431; he obtains a cornetcy in the blues, ib.; is deprived of his commission by Sir Robert Walpole, 432; comparison between the oratory of Murray and Mr. Pitt, 432, 3; Mr. Pitt joins the ministry, 433; his disinterestedness while in office, 433, 4; his severe reply to Mr. Hume Campbell, 435; is made secretary of state, 436; his gentle castigation of Mr. Grenville, 437; his reply to Lord Mansfield, 438, 9; speech on the state of the nation, 439, 40; extract from his last speech in the house, 441; observations of the author on Lord Chatham, as a minister during peace, 442, 3.
- Thomson's scripture history, from the creation to the birth of Christ, 267, et seq.; specimens of the questions and answers, 267, 8.
- Thomson's scripture history of the New Testament, 267, et seq.
- Time, olden, London in the, 145, et seq.
- Townley's reasons of the laws of Moses, from the More Nevochim of Maimonides, 352, et seq.; life and writings of Maimonides, 352, 3; he is appointed physician to the Sultan Alphadel at Cairo, 353; his daily avocations, ib.; he publishes the More Nevochim, 354; it excites a difference between the French and the Spanish Rabbins, ib.; his death and burial, ib.; on the originality of the Mosaic institutions, ib.; temples of the Heathens before the time of Moses, different from the Tabernacle, &c., 355, 6; difference between the Jewish and the Heathen privilege of Asylum, 356; Heathen mysteries, ib.; the Jewish ritual was without secrets, ib.; on the Mosaic distinction of animals, ib.; reasons for the prohibition of eating blood, 357; on the permanency of this prohibition, ib.; Maimonides's fourteen classes of precepts, 358, et seq.
- Travels, through Sicily and the Lipari islands, 376, et seq.
- Unbelief, on the criminality of, &c., 361, et seq.
- Universities, English, have lately afforded but little aid to biblical literature, 31.
- Uwins's treatise on diseases connected with indigestion, 64, et seq.; succession of disorders and remedies in former days, 64, 5; the digestive organs at present predominant, 65; tendency of the present work to correct absurd theorizing, 65, 6.
- Vanderkemp, Dr. his unremitting labours to relieve the Hottentots from the oppressions of an unfeeling government, 528, et seq.
- Vine, climate of the, 586.
- Vision, Columbus's, 229, 30.
- Volcanoes, active and extinct; Daubeny and Scrope on, 51, et seq.; history of volcanoes by the Abbé Ordinaire, 51; his incompetency and bad taste, 52; qualifications of the present authors, ib.; regions explored by Dr. Daubeny, 52, 3; tracts examined by Mr. Scrope, 53, 4; theories of Whiston, Woodward, and Burnet, 54; Burnet's description of volcanic phenomena, ib.; theories of Descartes, Leibnitz, de Maillet and Buffon, ib. remarks of the Baron Cuvier on the theory that the earth possesses vital faculties, 55, 6; the subject of volcanoes long neglected after the death of Pliny, 56, 7; investigations of Spallanzani, Dolomieu, and Sir Wm. Hamilton, 57; Werner totally unacquainted with the nature and effects of volcanoes; Dr. Daubeny's work consists of four lectures delivered before the university of Oxford, ib.; subjects of each lecture, ib.; Mr. Scrope's remarks on volcanic agency in central France, ib.; the volcanic remains in Auvergne, explored by Messrs. Guettard and Malesherbes, 58, 9; geological notice of Mont Dome and its dependencies, 59; its height, &c. ib.; Mont Dor, 60; Mont Cantal, ib.; volcanic region of Velay and Vivarais, ib.; Mr. Scrope on the antiquity of these volcanic formations, ib.; Dr. D. on the same point, 61; Baron Cuvier's opinion that our globe has suffered recently a great revolution, 62; Mr. Scrope on the causes of volcanic action, 63; his description of the operations of Stromboli, ib.; Dr. D. on the origin of volcanoes, 64.

INDEX.

Walsh's brief notice of some ancient coins and medals, as illustrating the progress of Christianity, 37, et seq.; the medal, the most imperishable of records, 37; the subject of medals and coins made use of by the Editor of Calmet, 37, 8; Pinkerton on Christian and Jewish coins, 38; Dr. Walsh takes advantage of the affected contempt for Christian medals, 38, 9; description of two coins of Diocletian, 39; interpretation of the allegorical figures, ib.; Gibbon's account of the persecution under Diocletian not entitled to credit, 39, 40; malignant design of Gibbon, 41; Christian coin of Constantine, 42; coin of Constantius, ib.; of Julian, ib.; of Jovian, ib.; inscription on a temple still standing in the island of Corfu, supposed to have been built by Jovian, 43; coin of Theodosius the Great, ib.; he introduced the globe and the cross, ib.; coin of Justinian, 43; remarkable coin of Justinian Rhinometus, 43; account of the Iconoclasts, in the reign of Leo the second, 44; Leo and Copronymus succeed in banishing images from the churches, ib.; inscription standing till lately over the great gate of the palace of Chalces at Constantinople; declaring their design in abolishing images, 45; coin of Johannes Zemiaces, the last of the series, 45, 6; inquiry how far the portrait of our Lord on these coins perpetuates a traditional resemblance of higher antiquity, 47; curious account of a coin found at Cork, &c., ib.; further remarks on portraits of our Lord, ib.; no Jewish coins bear the image of any living creature, 49; the Jewish coins probably minted by the Phenicians, ib.

War, the Peninsular, histories of, 506, et seq.; the large military force of Spain rendered ineffectual by the masterly manœuvres of Napoleon, 507, 8; character of the Guerrillas, as a military force, exposed by the Marquess of Londonderry, 509, 10; Gen. Foy's national prejudices disqualify him for writing a correct history of the war, 310, 11; comparative talent of Napoleon and Wellington considered, 511; Sir Arthur Wellesley's estimate of the difficulty of his undertaking, ib.; Gen. Foy's testimony of the unconquerable courage of the English infantry, 513; he thinks less favourably of the cavalry, 514; his description of the halt of a French division, 514, 15; character of the Marquess of Londonderry's narrative, 515; his remarks on Sir John Moore, 516; statement of Col. Napier respecting the retreat, 516, 17; Wellesley's review of the Spanish army by torch light, 518; Col. Napier's History, ib.; his valuable materials, 519; portrait of the Spaniard, 519, 20; the Colonel defends the Convention of Cintra, 520; mis-statement of Lord Byron, ib.; and of Sir Walter Scott, 521; generous acts of Marshal Soult and Marshal Ney, ib.; admirable instance of courage, &c. in an English and in an Irish soldier, 522; presence of mind in Capt. Lloyd, ib.

Wardlaw's sermons on man's accountability for his belief; and on the responsibility of the heathen, 361, et seq.; two principles distinctly recognized as the principles of Divine judgement, 374, 5; on the salvability of the heathen, 375, 6.

Warton's death-bed scenes and pastoral conversations, 215, et seq.; remarks on the work, 215, 16; extracts, 217, et seq. Werner unacquainted with the nature and effects of volcanoes, 57.

Williams, Mr. Missionary in Cafferland, account of his illness and death, 397, 8.

Worsley's lectures on the history of the Christian church, and on Nonconformity, 251, et seq.; the divinity of Christ stated to be a doctrine of the Greek schools of Alexandria; St. John wrote against the opinion that Christ was the word of God (!!) 253; difference between the primitive church and the church established by law, in England, 255; incorrect statements respecting the Nonconformists, 256; the fathers of our civil and religious liberties were opposed to the religious doctrines of the author, 258.

INDEX.

Zaffran, account of the Arabs of, 337, 8.

Ziza, a Moorish structure, near Palermo, description of it, 377.

